

From the collection of Brenda H

Boston Logs

My inspiration for this lap quilt, called Boston Logs, came while I was standing in my local quilt shop. Hanging behind the counter was a "top" with gorgeous geometric shapes and done in creams and fall fabrics using leaves and gold tone colors. While admiring the quilt hanging on the wall I noticed that this was a class being offered by the shop. WOW - I can take a class and learn how to do this! Upon checking with the shop the only day they had left for the class was March 11th. After pondering on it for a minute or two, I thought "why not". You see March 11th is my birthday and I decided to give myself a present. As you can see by the quilt hanging on the wall I had a wonderful Birthday!

This past winter I've also learned how to operate a long arm quilting machine and did all the meandering myself and to my amazement it turned out very well!

Pattern: Boston Logs
 by Little Miss Sloppy

Technique: Machine pieced and quilted.

Pieced by: Brenda H

Date made: 2005

Quilted by: Brenda H